

Reporting Sexual Harassment, Sexual Violence and Relationship Violence

Mines is concerned about the safety and well-being of its community members. Its policies prohibit sexual harassment and sexual violence, including sexual assault, stalking, domestic violence, and dating violence.

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 and Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 prohibit discrimination based on sex, including sexual harassment and sexual violence. The Violence Against Women Act amendments to the Clery Act require institutions to develop policies and procedures to address incidents of sexual violence, including sexual assault, stalking, domestic violence, and dating violence. Mines investigations are used to resolve situations involving allegations of sexual harassment and sexual violence. Mines investigation processes are handled as discreetly as possible, but confidentiality cannot be guaranteed. Mines prohibits retaliation for reporting sexual harassment, sexual violence, stalking, domestic violence or dating violence and for supporting another person in making a complaint.
